

HONORING TEXAS VICTIMS

Texas women and men killed by their intimate partners in 2020

VICTIM NARRATIVES

Each year, the Texas Council on Family Violence documents victims of intimate partner violence homicides to honor those whose lives were taken and to inform our work to close system gaps and change the culture that minimizes intimate partner abuse.

In 2020, a year of collective grief as so many lives were lost due to the COVID-19 pandemic, we witnessed an increase in barriers, isolation, and severity of domestic violence. Tragically, TCFV documents on the following pages a significant increase in intimate partner homicides within our Texas communities.

Beginning with the 2018 Honoring Texas Victims Report, TCFV expanded the review to include cases of men killed by female partners, and individuals killed by same-sex partners. With the inclusion of these victims, we hope to further inform community conversations, interventions, and solutions to domestic violence. The report includes victims with previous histories of violence perpetration, and intimate partner homicides with no known previous domestic violence. The report includes cases categorized as mercy killings, as we believe that a violent death represents the ultimate act of domestic violence.

Each confirmed fatality represents a woman or man killed in Texas by an intimate partner or a stalking perpetrator between January 2020 and December 2020 and includes the date of death, ages of the victim and perpetrator, location of the city and county, followed by a brief description of the circumstances based on available open records at the time. The narratives highlight lethality risk factors for best practices for enhancing future survivor safety. Information regarding criminal charges and bond conditions in this report represents what was known about the status of criminal cases at the time of publishing. We hope that a thoughtful examination of each case shines much needed light for improved prevention and intervention strategies to reduce domestic violence.

TCFV respectfully lists the names of each of the 228 victims of intimate partner homicide in 2020 and joins their families, friends, and communities in mourning each individual.
